

To Whom It May Concern,

Gregory Allen is a uniquely talented technical resource. Greg is one of the few people that I have ever worked with that has wide-ranging knowledge coupled with a very deep understanding in many technical fields. Greg is especially strong in networking and system administration. He's also a capable programmer, amongst many other skills.

Greg is an extremely responsible and reliable employee. He has a great work ethic and a cheerful disposition. Greg is self-motivated and does not require supervision to complete any project that he is tasked with. Greg's performance regularly exceeded that of his peers. Greg has a can-do attitude combined with strong problem solving skills.

Greg is probably best suited for long-term projects that require a wide range of technical aptitude. I would highly recommend, with no reservations, Greg for any position that matches that description.

Kind Regards,
